Highlights

Greenville High School (GHS) is designed for international students who wish to complete their 12th grade education and graduate with an American High School Diploma. International students can also attend Greenville High School for a one-year American education and cultural immersion program. Greenville High School offers students the ability to earn university credits from the University of Pittsburgh and Seton Hill University during their high school education. Highly motivated international students can earn a GHS high school education, graduate with an American High School Diploma, and earn up to one academic year's worth of university credits from the University of Pittsburgh and Seton Hill University (credits that would cost approximately US$50,000 a year to attain for University students.) Students who take these university courses will graduate with transcripts from University of Pittsburgh and Seton Hill University.
